Chapter 1 by Enrique_the_gr8

Maverick opened his eyes. He was in a tube. The tube had one small glass window, but that was it. He had no memories except his name. Just his first name though. No middle and no last. He pushed a small button that opened the door. He stepped out into the open, empty facility. He was in a small room. Other tubes like his lined the walls. They were all empty. He stepped out of the iron door. He was in a long corridor, still there was nothing. No people, no animals, no lights, just nothing. He continued. He didn't know why he should. He knows nothing, not why he is hear or how he got here, something just told him he should move, to never stop. It was strange indeed. He eventually got to a pair of double doors. He pushed them open and he found exactly what he expected, nothing. He was now in a massive warehouse. Boxes in huge piles are scattered everywhere. He brushes the dust off one box. The words "Lazarus Tech" are written on the side. Maverick continues through the warehouse. He gets to another door. The window is covered from the outside. He pushes the door open.

Chapter 2 by Yutyut4

There isn't much outside. Just more darkness. Though he is starring at a river. The river is covered in cement flood walls. He looks behind where the building he had come from stood. It was tall, but only had one floor. He started to walk towards the back of the building.

There was a door attached to and he went through it. He was not seeing out the corners...
